

The Words Worth Times

READING & YOU

Books play a large role in shaping and moulding us into the people we are today. "The more that you read, the more things you will know. The more that you learn, the more places you'll go" – Dr Seuss. Books impart skills, develop our imagination and creativity, and encourage engagement with textual material – a relationship with print that students nowadays are seen to be lacking.

Over and above the centrality of books and reading, reading also allows our children to broaden their horizons and perspectives, allowing students to have greater literary appreciation for the texts they engage with both in and outside of school.

At Words Worth, we recognise the importance of Reading, which is essential in helping our children become competent, and confident users of the English Language.

We hold book clubs at the end of every month to tie in with the themes previously discussed. This exposes the students to a wider range of texts within the same theme.

Our curriculum also exposes students to different text styles, allowing them to be comfortable when dealing with a variety of texts within an exam setting. In addition, it improves writing, owing to the bank of ideas and inspiration from the books they have read.

Reading is an important skill as part of developing fluency in the English Language. The joy of reading extends beyond the adventures we embark on across a myriad of genres – it fuels a unique passion to uncover meaning, and create our own.

Our programmes include activities that encourage healthy reading habits, and promote reading outside of the school materials they receive. We incorporate the use of books into our syllabus, and ensure that our curriculum is designed and executed to foster both a use and appreciation of the vast canon of literature.

Books also allow us to explore the world from the comfort of our homes through the voices of various characters who are empowered by their creators. When students are avid readers, they begin to identify patterns and question differences in life experiences, culture and artistic preferences that reveal themselves through text.

ABOUT WORDS WORTH

We offer enrichment classes for English Language and Literature. We offer English Language Programmes for Primary, Secondary and Junior College students. We also offer IELTS, IGCSE and IB English classes. Other enrichment programmes include Reading and Early Literacy for Pre-School students, Speech and Drama, Public Speaking and Communication Skills.

For further enquiries or to sign up for a FREE trial class, call us at 6440 0374.